O'Cready, spondent state and disilied to meet friends or acquaintances.

Thad been reading for a long time in the defly papers of people who were troubled in many ways as a labed been and who had been treated and cured by Drs. Copeland & Blair. I went to be treated by them and and expected to pay a large fee. It almost took my breath away when I was told what the charge would be it was so low that I could scarcely realise it.

"I was surprised to find so marked an improvement within the first ten days, and within a mouth there was so much change in my condition that I wow I would get well.

"Now-well, you can see for yourself-I feel where that I know of. I can see dearly. The cough has left me. My head and throat trouble me no longer. I get up in the morning feeling refreshed and strong, intend of thred and exhausted as I used to feel. It is as much a surprise to my friends and though the can be a state of the label of the can be a stated as I used to feel. It is as much a surprise to my friends.

Among the steamboat men of New York there are none whose names are more familiar to news are none whose manes are more familiar to news-paper readers and the general public than that of Capt. James Goff. For forty years on the river and occur, baving been an officer on nearly all the larguer steamship lines, he was for years on the Mor-gan line, and is well known in Charleston and nearly my head, threat, and after a while my chest and stomach that gave me the trouble. The doctors promonaced it a catarrhal trouble, but I spentibed-sends of dollars for physicians and patent medicines without getting any help. As near as I can tell you it began with clogging up of the rose, first on our side, then the other, sometimes a watery discharge, a dail pain over the eyes and more or less coughing.

"It was not long before the trouble extended to my chest. The pains would rush through my chest under my shoulder blades. Sometimes there would be pains in my limbs. It would burt me is

"And that cough—it seemed as if I never could get rid of it. I would have choking coughing spells at night. Something would seem to be resting like a weight on my chest. I couldn't get air enough to breathe comfortably. There was that continual hawking and rassing of phierm, the dropping back of mecus into the throat, the constant effort te raise or disladge something that seemed to be stickrates or dislodge something that seemed to be sticking there, so that I couldn't get it up or down.

"Oh, I suppose you are tired of listening, but if I should take an hour I couldn't tell you half my trouble. My stomach was affected and food seemed to rest on it like lead. The disease seemed to have got such a held on me that it affected me all over.

"My sight and hearing, for instance. Why, as short time ago I couldn't recognize a friend twenty feet distant from me on the street. My eyes were so weak, dim and watery.
"I felt half dead on my feet—no energy, no ambition to do snything. I get into a gloomy and despondent state and disliked to meet friends or as-

BOOK NOTES.

Recent news of two young New York artists at St. Ives, in Cornwall, will be received with pleasure by their many friends. Shortly after the marriage, a year ago, of Mile. Alexandrine Dupre to Mr. Sydney Mortimer Lawrence the happy pair went to St. Ives, rented Ayr House, a lovely cottage mantled with ivy and with a charming little garden, where Mrs. Lawrence of a pleasant Summer afternoon was fond of pouring tea for ler friends, and in this idyllic spot they have been working with delightful assiduity at their art. Mr. Lawrence has progressed greatly in his art, and is one of the coming marine painters of whom America will be proud. He has painted two or three very effective pictures during his sojourn abroad.

The art circles of New York miss this Winter one of the most charming women who adorned it, Mrs. Edwin H. B. and leld. Everything that can make women a reems to have been lavished with a prodigal hand on this fortunate lady except robust health. The great delicacy of her constitution led Mr. Blashfield to interrupt his very successful career here to Winter on the Nile, in the hope that his wife's health would be materially improved. Mrs. Blashfield's father, Mr. Wilbor, is one of the most distinguished Egyptologists of the age. They are slowly drifting up the Nile in their dahabeah, and Mrs. Blashfield is already much improved.

Three lives of Barye have been published within a twelvemonth. Like some of the 301 other higher artists of France the copious recognition of his morit came after the tombatone. Barye's art is superb; and the study of it afforded by the present exhibition is a rare one, that does not seem to be fully appreciated. There are only a few days remaining of the pest exhibition ever peld in New York.

Boston occasionally conceives an idea which does it credit. Not so much that the idea is a very original one as that Boston has it. The present exotic in the shape of a good idea is for the erection of a statue to the artist William M. Hunt. Such recognition is no more than the due of the best painter America has produced. Poor Hunt labored with restless energy to make his paintings in the Assembly at Albany monuments to his fame. But they are miserable failures as records of his ability. The light is so wretched that they cannot be well seen. and "The Discoverer" is almost ruined by moisture. Boston cannot do better than erect a stunning statue to this great painter.
